APPENDIX XII

IRI, ENI, ENEL

IRI

IRI, the abbreviated form of Istituto per la Ricostruzione Industriale, or Institute for Industrial Reconstruction, is largely a holding company, administering much of the nation's production of pig iron, steel, cement, shipbuilding, and machinery, as well as such services as telephones, maritime shipping, road-construction, banking, the radio and television networks, and the national airline.

IRI had its beginning in the depression years of the 1930's. After the end of World War II, IRI was given supervisory powers over state holdings in industry. These are at present controlled, for the most part, through joint stock companies in which private capital also has interests.

The principal IRI holding companies are:

FINSIDER - which controls steel plants.

FINMECCANICA - which is active in a large number of manufacturing industries, e.g.: automobiles and power generation, electrical engineering, railway equipment and precision tools.

FINMARE - through which IRI plays an important role in sea transport.

ENI

ENI, the abbreviated form of Ente Nazionale Idrocarburi, or National Petroleum Group, engages in all facets of petroleum production and distribution, both at home and abroad. ENI follows a policy of vertical integration, ranging from petroleum prospecting to gasoline service stations and motels.

ENEL

ENEL, the abbreviated form of Ente Nazionale Energia Elettrica, or National Agency for Electric Energy.
